The OAG is a supreme audit institution and its purpose is to provide accountability of the Solomon Islands Government.

2. Assignment overview

The OAG was assessed against a global tool called the Supreme Audit Institution Performance Measurement Framework (SAI PMF). This identified a number of gaps in its corporate and process documentation. Whilst progress has been made in a number of these areas there is still work to be done regarding staff capability and development.

The OAG is seeking the support of a Staff Capability and Development Adviser to put together a training framework based on the competency framework that will be used for a functional review. The Staff Capability and Development Adviser will work closely with the Manager Corporate Services to build her capacity in identifying key areas that staff need training and development in, identifying on-the-job, inhouse and external training and development opportunities, and putting a yearly plan in place. The Adviser will also support the Manager Corporate Services in the development of resources for tracking and reporting on training and development, identifying successes and challenges, and addressing issues in a timely manner. This will assist in enabling more efficient and effective ways of working and build the confidence of staff in key aspects of their work.
