1. Partner organisation overview

The Public Solicitor's Office (PSO) is an independent public office under the constitution of Solomon Islands to provide legal aid, advice and assistance to those needing their services. The PSO helps Solomon Islanders with their legal problems provided that they meet certain eligibility criteria that considers the person's individual circumstances including their financial situation and the nature of their legal problem, as well as other factors such as age, disability and communication difficulties.

The PSO has lawyers who can help the general public to understand their legal rights and responsibilities, and navigate the legal system providing advice and representation under four divisions that handle civil law, family law, criminal law and Landowners advisory legal support.

The services of lawyers at the PSO are free. However, there are court fees that will need to be paid to the High Court or the Magistrate's Courts if a claim is filed. In instances where the PSO is unable to represent a client in Court, usually due to the eligibility guideline, information will be given to the client to ensure that they are able to effectively represent themselves.

One of the challenges faced by the PSO is providing support, sound advice and legal representation by the Landowners Advisory Legal Support Unit (LALSU). While lawyers are qualified there is mentoring support required to enable them to handle the LALSU cases and conduct their work in a manner that results in better outcomes for their clients.

7. Country Context

Honiara is the business centre of Solomon Islands and as such is a melting pot for people from all the island groups that make up the diverse nation. A hot and dusty place, Honiara offers most facilities albeit in a rudimentary form. You are strongly encouraged to build relationships in the local community and socialise with Solomon Islanders at every opportunity, as this will enrich your experience of living in Solomons. However, entertainment options are few and far between so there is also a very active expatriate social scene. There are various clubs and social groups in Honiara, which you will get to know with time.

VSA will provide basic, furnished accommodation with gas facilities for cooking. In Honiara, you will have access to power (although power outages can occur), phone, internet, piped water, restaurants, a variety of shops and a large expatriate population. Public transport is very cheap within Honiara. The local bus service is provided by a plethora of vans, and some larger buses. A single fare of SBD3 applies, regardless of the length of the trip. Taxis charge a moderate fare (currently SBD10 per kilometre) but it is wise to establish a fare before commencing a journey.

Most volunteers feel safe in Solomon Islands, but it is important to know the risks and take personal responsibility for your safety. As in many countries, foreigners tend to be the target of petty crime, so always be alert and take precautions. In general, there are no problems moving around the majority of Honiara during the day, but it is not safe to walk or catch public transport alone in Honiara after dark.
